

AIMEE TOSHNEY

Scottish opera singer and amateur Aimee studied at the University of Glasgow (MA Music & MMus Musicology) before training at the RNCM and with English National Opera on the 'Opera Works' scheme. She now performs and leads music projects around the UK – singing, teaching, conducting and leading creative workshops – and is much commended for an enthusiastic, down-to-earth style of delivery. Her first love has always been collaborative music-making and she takes great joy in sharing her love of music and enriching lives through education and outreach work. Organisations she has worked with in this capacity include the National Youth Choir of Scotland, the Royal Scottish National Orchestra, Cheshire East Council's arts programme for older people, British MENSA, Jessie's Fund, Armonico Consort and Leeds Lieder. She is also a trained Kodály musicianship tutor and shares his belief that music-making is for everyone!

January 2017

